

PUBLISHERS' NEWS
AND ANNOUNCEMENTS.

BASIL KING acknowledges publicly what he had long known privately, the authorship of "The Inner Shrine," "The Wild Olive" and "The Street Called Straight," by printing his name on the title page of his new novel, "The Way Home," which the Messrs. Harper publish this week. Mr. King's literary career has been a curious one. The author of a number of novels of only average popularity, he suddenly turned to anonymity, and won his first great success with the opening chapters of "The Inner Shrine" in "Harper's Magazine." The authorship of this story and its successors was ascribed to many American and English novelists before the mystery was cleared up by those on the inside of bookish matters.

JOHN MAREFIELD's new volume of poems, "Salt Water Ballads," is one of the week's notable publications. Marefield is at his best when singing of the sea. He knows it and loves it. The book is issued by the Macmillan Company.

"THE BROKEN HALO," Florence L. Barclay's new novel, is announced by the Messrs. Putnam for publication early in the fall.

CLARA LOUISE KELLOGG's "Memoirs of a Prima Donna" are to be the imprint of G. P. Putnam's Sons when they are issued in book form, some time next month.

FRENCH FICTION is likely to be better represented on the publishers' autumn lists than for some years past. The Messrs. Scribner announce a translation of a volume of tales of French family life at its truest and best by René Bazin, "The Marriage of Mlle. Gmel, and Other Stories," that old campaigner, George Olinet, is to be represented by an English version of "The Eagle's Talon," a story of the Napoleonic era (Putnam); Duffield & Co. have in preparation a new novel by Henri Bordeaux, "Footprints Beneath the Snow," and from the John Lane Company comes Marcelle Tinayre's "Madeleine at Her Mirror."

MAURICE HEWLETT is represented among the week's new books, "Bendish," as his latest novel is called, is a story of late Georgian days, which turns upon the identity of the handsome and talented young peer whose name it bears. The Messrs. Scribner have just issued the book.

THE ATTEMPTS to reconcile science and religion continue to multiply. In Dr. Newman Smyth's "Constructive Natural Theology" (Scribner) the conviction is expressed that "the modern sciences not only reopen old problems of philosophy, but also afford fresh and rich material for religious thought." Sir Oliver Lodge, whose recent speech before the British Association has been so widely reported, wrote some years ago what may be called a catechism for the guidance of those who would combine the best of religious and scientific beliefs. "The Substance of Faith Allied with Science" is the title of this book, published in this country by Harper & Bros.

"TRISTAN AND ISOLDE" will be the ninth of Oliver Huckle's metric translations of the texts of Wagner's music dramas. It will be issued in time for the holidays by Thomas Y. Crowell & Co.

THE BRITISH representative at Washington during the fateful period of our Civil War was Lord Lyons, and his experiences and observations in that position are of peculiar interest to Americans. As British Ambassador at Paris he saw the fall of the Empire and went through the siege. His life of diplomacy is described in two forthcoming volumes by Lord Newton. Longmans, Green & Co. will publish this work, and will also bring the fiction, Evan Charteris's biography of the famous Duke, "Butcher" Cumberland.

"THE STORY OF HARVARD" by Arthur Stanwood Pier, announced for early publication by Little, Brown & Co., Boston, will tell in a relatively brief form the history of the founding of Harvard College in its early days, its ancient customs and tradition, with pictures of the able men who have presided over its destinies, together with an account of its student life at the present time. Mr. Pier is a Harvard graduate, class of '96. The illustrations are from pencil drawings of the famous landmarks of the university by Vernon Howe Bailey.

FREDERICK TREVOR HILL's third novel dealing with the law of the land is announced by the Century Company. It is called "The Thirteenth Juror." The book should be welcome to readers of Mr. Hill's two preceding novels, "The Law and Exceptions," which deals with civil law, and "The Accomplice," which presents the inner facts of a criminal trial.

"SHAKESPEARE AS A PLAY-WRIGHT," by Professor Brander Matthews, is one of the most timely of the Scribner announcements for fall publication. This will be Shakespeare's great season on the American stage; we shall see and hear him in relation to our own time; Professor Matthews will take us back to the theatre, the actors and the audiences of Elizabethan days.

HELEN HUNT JACKSON's "Ramona," of which ninety-four editions have been issued since its original publication in 1884, will be brought out in a new edition this autumn, with an explanatory introduction of the genesis of the novel by A. C. Vroman, together with illustrations from photographs of the actual scenes of the story in Southern California.

HOUGHTON MIFFLIN COMPANY will publish next Saturday "Letters and Recollections of Alexander Agassiz," by George R. Agassiz, "A Confederate Girl's Diary," by Sarah Morris, "The Country of Sir Walter Scott," by Charles S. Osgood, "Wonderful Escapes by Americans," from Stone Booth, "Lincoln and the Slavery," by Albert E. Pillsbury, "The Significance of Art," by Eleanor H. Rowland, "Young Working Girls," a summary of evidence from 200 social workers, by Robert A. Woods and Albert J. Kennedy, "Medieval Industries," a study of economic development dealing with coal mining, ship building, metal working, etc., by L. F. Salzman, and "Interest and Effort in Education," by John Dewey. On the same day this Boston house will issue a novel, "Simpson," by Elinor Morgan, which is described as "in the best sense of the word a love story with an unusual plot," and two books for the young, "The Boy Editor," by Winifred Kirkland, and "A Book of Fairy Tales," by Clifton Johnson.

THAT ITALIAN CLASSIC of childhood, Pinocchio, who was introduced some years ago to American nurseries, reappears in a new narrative of his strange doings, "Pinocchio Under the Sea," translated from the original by Carolyn Lattin, at amusing small children, contains considerable incidental information concerning the submarine animal and plant life, phase of the book being brought forward, furthermore, in Florence Rutledge Abel Wilde's illustrations.

MANY TRUNKS HELD UP

Passengers on Three Big Liners Run Afoul of Inspectors for Failure to Declare Jewelry.

Hearings in seven cases of smuggling on the steamships Lusitania, Majestic and Imperator were held in the Custom House yesterday before Surveyor Henry.

Several seizures of jewelry and gowns were made, but the bulk of detained baggage was held for further appraisal at the public stores.

Louis F. H. Betts, a lawyer, of No. 52 William street, whose home is at No. 529 Park avenue, fell into the customs net on his arrival yesterday by the Cunarder Lusitania from Liverpool.

According to the evidence submitted by the deputy surveyor in charge of the pier examination, Mr. Betts's declaration showed a record of clothing valued at $50. When his trunks were examined an inspector found dutiable goods in excess of that amount and sent for Deputy Surveyor Raskiewicz. The latter explained the law to Mr. Betts and asked him if he had anything on his person that he wished to declare. Without hesitation the lawyer took from his pocket a gold watch bracelet, and this, with the entire baggage, was sent to the Appraiser's Stores. He was ordered to appear at the Custom House, and later in the day explained that he made deductions on his foreign purchases on the ground that some of the articles had been worn. It was said that the total appraisal of his importations will be about $4,500.

Another detained passenger on the Lusitania was Max Finkelstein, of No. 23 West 112th street. Attention was first called to his baggage by the sudden disappearance from the pier of his daughter, Pauline, who had accompanied him from Liverpool. The young woman went away wearing a Paris suit and hat and a gold watch bracelet, all of which had not been declared. An inspection of the Finkelstein trunks showed many articles that had not been declared, and the baggage was sent to the Appraiser's Stores. At the Custom House yesterday Finkelstein said his daughter had written the declaration, and believing it to be correct, he had signed it without reading it.

Mrs. John W. Herbert, of No. 507 Fifth avenue, a passenger on the Imperator, appeared before the Surveyor to explain why she had declared only $40 worth of dutiable linen, furs and wearing apparel, when an amount exceeding the declaration had been found in her baggage. In the trunk also was found a bill for a gold mesh bag, and when asked to produce it she explained that her daughter, Mrs. Edward Dunn, who had come to the pier to meet her, had taken it away. She produced a mesh bag and a costly scarf pin, weighed, but decision on the baggage was reserved.

Bertram G. Work, of No. 15 East 51st street, who with his wife and son arrived Wednesday night on the Imperator, was accused of undervaluation in bringing in goods for his wife. He declared $40 worth of goods, but fourteen dresses, which he declared were worth $70, were appraised at $150. He said yesterday that he and his wife were worried over the condition of their child, who had to be hurried ashore for an operation, and that he might have depended too largely upon guess work in making out his declaration. Decision was reserved.

Mrs. Fanny Hoadley, a passenger on the Majestic, and Mrs. Marie Webber, a dressmaker, of No. 155 Summer avenue, Brooklyn, who came in on the Imperator, yesterday appeared before the Surveyor under undervaluation. Mrs. Hoadley was accused of undervaluation in a skirt in her trunk, admitted that she tried to smuggle and the lace was seized.

Abraham Brown, an importer, of Chicago, who arrived on the Imperator, failed to declare $300 worth of jewelry, which was seized.

CHARITY HER CHIEF CARE

Will of Miss Jeanne Platt Benefits Institutions.

The will of Miss Jeanne Platt, who died on July 1, at Camden, Penn., was filed in the Surrogate's Court yesterday. The will disposes of an estate valued at not more than $10,000, most of which is left to public institutions. The chief bequests are: American Female Guardian Society and Home for the Friendless, $5,000; New York Institute for the Blind, $1,000; Sunshine Home, Nursery, Hospital and Kindergarten for Blind Babies, $500; New York Christian Missionary Society, of Buffalo, $100, in memory of the mother, father and brother of the testatrix; First Church of the Disciples of Christ, $500; Christian Women's Board of Missions, Indianapolis, $500; and Disciples' Missionary Union, $500.

Miss Platt left the residue of her estate to the Christian Women's Board of Missions, Disciples' Missionary Union, First Church of the Disciples of Christ and Miss Belle Brewer. She made her will on June 2, 1911, and provided that if her estate became impaired or diminished the bequests were to be distributed pro rata in proportion to the bequests made. But as she made other bequests, there will probably be no residue to distribute. Some of these bequests were $1,000 to Robert Christie and his wife, Mrs. Jessie Christie, as a "slight remembrance" for services rendered by Mr. Christie, and $500 to Catherine Patterson, to be used for her invalid brother. Five cousins of the testatrix were not mentioned in the will.

ADAMSON IN NEW COMPANY

Mayor's Secretary to Join Water Purifying Concern.

Robert Adamson, Mayor Gaynor's secretary, will be associated with the Permutt Company after the first of the year. This company, which is headed by Henry S. Thompson, Commissioner of Water Supply, was incorporated several months ago with a capital of $12,500,000.

It is engaged in the business of purifying water for drinking purposes and has offices in the Forty-second Street Building. The process of purification is said to be based on the discovery in Europe of a stone said to possess wonderful chemical properties. Mr. Adamson will be secretary of the concern.

TEACHES WILSON GLIDE

Girl Joins Typewriting to Earn $10 an Hour.

[From The Tribune Bureau.] Washington, Sept. 19.—From $7 a week as a Washington typewriter girl to $10 an hour as a teacher of the Wilson glide, the Marshall dip, the Garrison canter, the diplomatic promenade and a few others in the wonderful record being made by Helen Durnin, of Washington, out in frisky Frisco.

As a $7 a week typewriter girl Miss Durnin's only hit was on the black and white keys, save on special occasions, when she appeared in one of the spectacular fancy dress dances given for the pupils of Miss Minnie Hawke, a Washington teacher, in one of the theatres here. On such occasions she won rounds of applause.

However, it was not until a few weeks ago, when Miss Durnin went to San Francisco to visit Mrs. Clarence Grange, that her wonderful luck began.

Folk begged her for lessons at $10 an hour, and pupils are fairly falling over one another to get there, for in addition to the latest tricks, she is, in addition to the dozen and one glides she is showing them how ambassadors and ministers, Cabinet members, Supreme Court judges and even how the White House belles do the latest dips and glides and other entrancing steps.

WOMAN HELD AS BRIBER

Police Say Proprietor of "Little Belmont" Offered $400.

The alleged tender of $400 to soften the testimony of the police against the Hotel Belmont, at No. 116 West 45th street, as a public nuisance led to the arrest on a charge of bribery yesterday of Mrs. Rose Barwick, a negro, thirty-eight years old, who is supposed to be the proprietor of the hotel. The police say that after the arrest of Mrs. Barwick Tuesday on the charge of keeping and conducting a public nuisance she offered $400 to policemen to affect their testimony and that a trap was laid to give her a chance to offer the bribe.

According to the police, Mrs. Barwick, after being admitted to bail, telephoned to Detective Jones, of Inspector Day's staff, and said that she would like to "fix" the case up with him and Patrolmen Imbriale and Sutter. On Wednesday night Jones met Mrs. Barwick at the entrance to Central Park at 49th street and Sixth avenue, where a stenographer was concealed in the bushes.

According to the notes, Mrs. Barwick offered $300 for Jones and $100 each for Imbriale and Sutter to render their testimony innocuous, and an arrangement was made whereby Mrs. Barwick met Jones the next day in a department store, where, it is alleged, she gave him the money and was arrested.

TYPHOID EPIDEMIC GROWS

Health Department Hears of 10 New Cases in East Side.

Ten new cases of typhoid fever were reported to the Department of Health yesterday from that section of the East Side now in the grip of a sharp typhoid outbreak. The total number of cases in that break is now 15.

Health Commissioner Lederle said yesterday that he was considering plans which would eventually compel all Grade B milk sold in this city to be pasteurized. It is Grade B "raw" milk which is suspected of having caused the outbreak.

"This increase only goes to show that all but the highest grades of milk should be pasteurized," said the Commissioner. "For some time past I have had under consideration a comprehensive plan which would make all the highest grades subject to pasteurization before being sold in the city."

The Health official said that pasteurization was such a simple process that it could be done at home, and where there were no children it would be all right for those drinking milk to heat it just short of the boiling point. Such milk, though, was not advocated for children, pasteurization being the proper method of making safe the milk consumed by them.

The Academy of Medicine is keeping in close touch with the situation. Dr. E. H. L. Corwin, secretary of that body, when seen at the Department of Health yesterday, said the health officers had reported the outbreak well in hand.

Yesterday seized upon the entire family of Philip Hoehn, a grocer, of No. 77 Broome street, and all were taken to Gouverneur Hospital, where, except Governor, who died from the disease, there are four children. Another child living at the same address, was also stricken with typhoid yesterday.

WOMAN KILLS MAD DOG

Mother Uses Gas Pipe to Save Her Child.

Wielding a piece of iron gas pipe which she snatched up from the floor as she ran in answer to the screams of her little daughter Rose, Mrs. Josephine Amanna, of No. 313 Villa avenue, The Bronx, crushed the skull of a mad dog yesterday which had jumped upon the child and bitten her.

The little girl was playing in front of the house when the dog, a black and tan mongrel, ran into the group of children with her. The others fled, and Rose, with a three-year-old playmate, went into the hallway of the house, but before she could close the door the animal had leaped inside. It bit the child with her sharp teeth. Mrs. Amanna rushed into the hallway and saw the enraged dog tearing at her child's arm. Snatching up the piece of gas pipe, the woman aimed one blow at the dog, which stunned it, and as it dropped she rained blows upon its head which crushed the skull. The two children were taken to Fordham Hospital, where two other children, also bitten by the dog in its career through the streets, came for treatment.

LEFT MONEY FOR MISSIONS

Arthur A. Anderson Willed Little to Relatives.

By the will of Arthur A. Anderson filed in the Surrogate's Court yesterday, the Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian Church and the New York Bible Society were to receive $5,000 and a share of the residue of the estate.

Anderson left $2,000 to his brother, Samuel Edward Anderson, and $1,000 each to his brother Mathew and his sister Mary. His brothers and sister live in Ireland. Mr. Anderson left the residue of his estate to his brothers and sister and the two organizations above mentioned. The New York Bible Society and the Board of Home Missions will each receive 35-71. Samuel Edward Anderson, 2-71, and Mary Anderson and Mathew Anderson each 1-71. The bequest to the Board of Home Missions is to create a fund to be used in the United States for missionary work in New York City.

SCANDAL OF LETTERS

SHOCKS FLORAL PARK

Man Who Carried Them Gets Transferred Far, Far Away

—Wife Not Told.

WOMAN ON ROUTE IS GONE

Her Husband Advertises—Post-office Employee Sells Auto and Does Other Things to Make Talk.

[From The Tribune Correspondent.] Floral Park, Sept. 19.—Mrs. David B. Bosworth, a New York City school teacher, who lives at Floral Park, Long Island, learned to-day that her husband, a letter carrier of the Jamaica postoffice, who carried mail to the citizens of St. Albans, a settlement on the eastern border of Queens Borough, had obtained from the Postoffice Department a transfer to Los Angeles.

He left Floral Park yesterday, or possibly the night before, without taking anything with him from his home. Mrs. Bosworth, a wife of H. C. Voss, of St. Albans, a wine salesman, also left her home yesterday.

DeMitt Brothers, of Jamaica, who run a storage warehouse and moving van business, upon order of Mrs. Voss, went to the Voss home yesterday and carted away all the furniture to their warehouse. To-day they crated the furniture and marked it for shipment, according to instructions: "Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Voss, Los Angeles, Cal."

That Mr. Voss had nothing to do with the matter was inferred from an advertisement he inserted this afternoon in a Brooklyn newspaper, in which he said: "My wife, Louise, Elsie Voss, having left my bed and board, I will no longer be responsible for any debts she may contract."

Voss's daughter, a young woman of eighteen, is believed by neighbors to have gone with her mother. Voss could not be found to-day, nor was Miss Voss seen at St. Albans.

Bosworth, who is fifty years old, was prominent in the work of the Methodist Church in Floral Park. In St. Albans he was said to have been common talk for a year or more that when he was delivering mail it was his custom to stop for an hour or so at a time at the Voss home to talk with Mrs. Voss. Neighbors said this caused so much delay in the delivery of their own mail that they were considering the advisability of making a complaint, when word was received that Bosworth had disappeared.

Mrs. Bosworth went to the Jamaica postoffice to-day to ask Postmaster Warren B. Ashmead if he knew the whereabouts of her husband, who did not appear at his home last night.

Mr. Voss's husband got a transfer to Los Angeles, and has gone there. Didn't you know about it? asked Ashmead.

He said he could not tell whether any such transfer and left me without a word of intending to stay away," Mrs. Bosworth replied. He was as usual when I saw him last, and I had no reason for believing he planned to leave me."

Mrs. Bosworth later in the day learned that her husband sold his automobile for $300.

Mrs. Voss is forty-two years old, but looks twenty. She dresses in the height of fashion and is handsome.

HIGH SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

CLINCHES ANTI CONTENTION

Attempt to Make Soldiers of the Pupils Has Not Met with Success as Yet.

Not only are the thirteen Washington Irving High School pupils in the picture thirteen arguments for anti-suffrage, but it is the opinion of the principal and teachers there that every girl in the school is a similar argument just now. Do not the "antis" say that a woman fourth. Yesterday we were only two minutes and fifty seconds making the same move.

But the West Point air is lacking, and the teachers at the Washington Irving High School are talking themselves hoarse adjuring the girls: "Don't stand down like that!" "Hold yourselves like soldiers!" "Now, be quick! You aren't moving your company out next week, captain, but now."

Stragglers found in the halls away from

cannot make a soldier, therefore she should not vote?

The girls of the Washington Irving High School are trying to be military. Maybe they will succeed in time. They will if sharp scoldings from their superiors can make them. They have not had much time yet, it is true, for it was only last Monday that the West Point-Annapolis ideal struck them.

It occurred to the teachers and some of the pupils at the Washington Irving High School that it was taking too much time to move classes from room to room, in the course of a day, and it was estimated that from twenty minutes to half an hour was wasted daily because there wasn't enough system about the business. Then some genius there had an idea. Why not organize the classes into military companies, and have the class, captains march them from room to room, to the music of a "Hip! Hip! Hip!"

The girls debated the matter in assembly and voted unanimously for the plan. They inaugurated it last Monday, and have succeeded in cutting down the time taken to move classes.

"Tuesday," said Annie Goldstein, the class captain in the picture, yesterday, "we were three minutes and fifty seconds getting from the eighth floor to the their companies are given short shrift. The teachers round them up and ask them if they are so anxious to come fifteen minutes earlier in the morning that they are trying to defeat the plan for quick moving of classes. Who voted for this plan? the teachers ask. Didn't the girls themselves? Yes, well, then, will the stragglers join their companies and obey military rules? Of course, if they don't like the plan they can be transferred to another high school, where the military march has not been introduced.

This offer invariably sends the straggler hastily in search of her company. Some of the companies have rear guards as well as captains. When the order is given a class to go to another room, the captain jumps up and says: "Left! Right! Left! Right!" Or, if she had a brother in the army once, she says: "Hip! Hip! Hip!"

Then invariably she marches at the head of her class, to the disgust of the teachers, who try to impress on her that the captain should remain at the side and keep her eye on her company.

"Well," one of the Washington Irving teachers said yesterday, "our girls have a way of mastering what they undertake. Maybe, if the 'antis' come around next term they'll find 'em real trim soldiers."

News of the Markets

Butter and eggs have acquired an alarm-habit of becoming a trifle higher each week only 1 or 2 cents, but 1 or 2 cents more each week is enough to be disturbing. And, what is worse, there is no immediate prospect of a reversal of affairs.

Veal is still very high in Washington Market, a little higher, in fact, this week. Other meat prices are unchanged. Scalops, shrimps and smelts are to be found in abundance in the market. Soft shell crabs are scarce and at some stores unobtainable.

Green peas left the markets this week and the last supply of huckleberries and blackberries has been disposed of. Peaches are all coming from the West—California, Utah and Colorado. Fresh figs may be bought at 25 cents a quart, and hothouse strawberries at 75 cents a quart.
